

Change

I no longer try to change outer things.
They are simply a reflection.

I change my inner perception and the outer reveals the beauty so long obscured by my own attitude.

I concentrate on my inner vision and find my outer view transformed.

I find myself attuned to be the grandeur of life and in unison with the perfect order of the universe.